EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Funding and staffing of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) JIU/REP/2007/8

Objective

To help improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the work of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) by:

- Recommending adequate mechanisms for the involvement of Member States in the review of the draft programme of work and associated budget requirements for human rights activities, in light of the priorities established by the Human Rights Council, as well as for monitoring the use of funds and the implementation of the programme of work of OHCHR;
- Reviewing the current measures in place and, where appropriate, recommending more adequate measures to redress the imbalance in the geographical distribution of the professional and higher staff within OHCHR.

Main findings and conclusions

- In response to various recommendations contained in previous reviews of oversight bodies, OHCHR has recently undertaken a number of actions to improve its management and organization. However, it should continue its efforts and undertake measures to link the budget and planning process to results and managerial performance in line with a results based management approach, as part of a more rigorous monitoring and evaluation framework (see recommendation 1).
- The Human Rights Council is not involved in the review of the programme of work and the associated budget requirements for human rights activities at the draft stage, and is not able to provide advice and comments to the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (the High Commissioner).
- One of the eight funds managed by OHCHR, the Trust Fund for the Support to the Activities of OHCHR, represents 78 per cent of the total extrabudgetary resources of OHCHR. However, this Fund does not have an appropriate board of trustees to review and approve the projects and activities to be financed by it and approval is granted solely by an internal body consisting of senior managers and chaired by the Deputy High Commissioner for Human Rights (see recommendation 3).
- OHCHR's total resource requirements for the biennium 2006-2007 are estimated at US$ 265.3 million. Of this sum, 35.3 per cent comes from the United Nations regular budget, while 64.7 per cent is projected to be funded from extrabudgetary resources.
- Although the Member States at the 2005 World Summit called for a doubling of OHCHR's regular budget resources over the next five years, concerns have been raised that this agreed budget target would not be reached. Additionally, OHCHR depends heavily on the growing voluntary contributions to fund core and mandated activities, which are often subject to certain conditionalities imposed by Member States.

- The dependency on voluntary contributions is compounded by the reliance on a relatively small number of donors. In 2006, 97.6 per cent of pledged voluntary contributions came from 20 major donors and 80.8 per cent came from just 10 countries. There is a need to broaden the donor base by encouraging non-traditional donor countries to make contributions (see recommendation 5).
- A large percentage of the funding of OHCHR is earmarked by donors for specific purposes. Although the proportion of earmarked funding has decreased in recent years, it represented 63 per cent of the total funds from the top 20 donors in 2006.
- There is currently no mechanism for Member States to review or approve individual voluntary contributions made to OHCHR, nor are they informed of the conditions proposed when individual contributions are being made. The Human Rights Council should be informed of such contributions above a significant level, as well as the conditionalities that may be attached to them (see recommendation 7).
- The issue of the imbalance in the geographical distribution of the staff of OHCHR was repeatedly raised by the former Commission on Human Rights and its successor the Human Rights Council as a matter of serious concern. Despite the two previous Joint Inspection Unit (JIU) reports containing specific recommendations regarding this matter, as well as the recently reported measures to address the imbalance, the situation has not significantly improved when looking at the recent figures for professional staff.
- While the number of professional regular staff increased by 174 per cent between 2005 and 30 June 2007, staff from the Group of Western European and other States account for 61.7 per cent and remains the Group with the highest representation for many years. Although figures as of 30 June 2007 show a slight improvement compared to previous years, the serious and continuing imbalance in the geographical distribution of the professional and higher staff could result in diminishing the effectiveness and credibility of the work of OHCHR if it is perceived to be culturally biased and unrepresentative of the United Nations as a whole.

Recommendations for consideration by legislative organs

- The General Assembly should instruct the High Commissioner to seek the advice and the views of the Human Rights Council in the preparation of the proposed strategic framework and the associated budget requirements for human rights activities, prior to the finalization of these documents (recommendation 2).
- The General Assembly should establish a reasonable balance between the regular budget of OHCHR and the voluntary contributions that could be accepted in support of human rights related activities (recommendation 4).
- The General Assembly should instruct OHCHR to strengthen its efforts to convince donors to continue to reduce earmarked funding or enhance the flexibility of funds, applying principles such as the Good Humanitarian Donorship principles (recommendation 6).
- The General Assembly should introduce a temporary maximum level on the recruitment of new professional staff (between the P-1 and P-5 levels) to OHCHR from overrepresented regions, until such time as a geographical balance has been reached. (recommendation 8).

I. INTRODUCTION

1. As part of its programme of work for 2007, the Joint Inspection Unit (JIU) conducted a review of funding and staffing of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR).

2. The objective of the review was to help improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the work of OHCHR by:

- Recommending adequate mechanisms for the involvement of Member States in the review of the draft programme of work and associated budget requirements for human rights activities, in light of the priorities established by the Human Rights Council, as well as for monitoring the use of funds and the implementation of the programme of work;
- Reviewing the current measures in place and, where appropriate, recommending more adequate measures to redress the imbalance in the geographical distribution of professional and higher staff within OHCHR.

3. The General Assembly, by its resolution 61/159, requested JIU to assist the Human Rights Council to monitor systematically the implementation of that resolution (referring to both contributions and geographical distribution of staff), inter alia, by submitting to the Human Rights Council a comprehensive follow-up report on the implementation of the recommendations contained in the reports previously carried out by JIU at the request of the Commission on Human Rights. These recommendations were the result of two JIU reviews of the functioning of OHCHR, concentrating on managerial issues. As a result of the work carried out in conducting those reviews, the Inspectors found that there were still some issues which deserve the attention of Member States. In discharging the mandate of the General Assembly, JIU issues this review as a progress report, and will continue to monitor progress and issue a follow-up comprehensive report to the Human Rights Council in May 2009.

4. The review focused on the current funding mechanisms, as well as the budget processes of OHCHR, in order to ensure a more viable, equitable and efficient way of financing its activities, which are at the core of the United Nations mandate. The review also monitored progress made with regard to the issue of geographical composition and functions of OHCHR staff at the professional and higher levels.

5. In accordance with the internal standards and guidelines of JIU and its internal working procedures, the methodology followed in preparing this report included a preliminary review, questionnaires, interviews and in-depth analysis. Detailed questionnaires were sent to OHCHR to obtain relevant and up-to-date information. On the basis of the responses received, the Inspectors conducted an interview with the Deputy High Commissioner for Human Rights, accompanied by two staff members. Factual corrections and comments from OHCHR on the draft report have been sought and taken into account in finalizing it.

6. In accordance with article 11.2 of the JIU statute and its standing practice, this report has been finalized after consultation among the Inspectors, so as to test its conclusions and recommendations against the collective wisdom of the Unit.

7. To facilitate the handling of the report and the implementation of its recommendations and the monitoring thereof, the annex contains a table indicating whether the report is submitted to the organizations concerned for action or for information. The table identifies those recommendations relevant for each organization, specifying whether they require a decision by the legislative or governing body of the organization, or can be acted upon by the executive head.

8. The Inspectors wish to express their appreciation to all who assisted them in the preparation of this report, and particularly to those who participated in the interviews and so willingly shared their knowledge and expertise.

II. PROGRAMME MANAGEMENT

A. Strengthened management and planning

9. In response to various recommendations contained in previous reviews of oversight bodies, OHCHR has recently undertaken a number of actions to strengthen its management and organization.

10. The report of the Office of Internal Oversight Services (OIOS) on the management review of OHCHR¹ called for the creation of an OHCHR-wide programme planning, monitoring and evaluation function as well as the preparation of a comprehensive and detailed strategy, from which the medium- and longer-term tangible objectives of the organizational units and operational activities of OHCHR would be derived. In response to the OIOS recommendations and in an effort to improve management and planning at OHCHR, a policy, planning, monitoring, and evaluation section was created in 2006. The new section helps to ensure that the strategic vision of OHCHR is translated into concrete priorities and operational plans, and that effective monitoring and evaluation of impact is conducted. The section is also responsible for developing the Strategic Management Plan,² serving as a planning and fund-raising tool, presenting OHCHR's needs and outlining proposed activities to all Member States.

11. The Plan of Action,³ released in May 2005, presents a strategic vision of OHCHR for 2006-2011 and the biennial Strategic Management Plan, issued in February 2006, introduces the means by which OHCHR aims to operationalize this vision and follows the five priority areas as described in the Plan of Action. The Strategic Management Plan sets out key objectives, outputs, expected accomplishments, and the indicators by which performance would be measured. The 2006 Annual Report reviews the implementation of the 2006-2007 Strategic Management Plan during the first half of the biennium, using the performance indicators set out in the document to gauge progress.

12. The 2006 Annual Report acknowledges that while the performance indicators contained in the Strategic Management Plan have been very useful in having OHCHR staff focusing on the need to monitor and measure progress against results, more work is required to improve and refine some of the indicators for future use, and to put in place the necessary data-collection processes to ensure accurate reporting. Some of the current indicators, such as the level of awareness and the understanding of human rights mechanisms by civil society actors, require surveys to be conducted, if they are to be applied satisfactorily.

13. The Inspectors believe that some progress has been made by OHCHR to improve its management and planning. However, it should continue the recently initiated efforts to improve results based management (including performance monitoring) and evaluation.

Recommendation 1

OHCHR should undertake deliberate measures to link the budget and planning process to results and managerial performance, in line with a results based management approach, as part of a more rigorous monitoring and evaluation framework.

B. Involvement of the Human Rights Council

14. The relationship between the Human Rights Council and OHCHR was confirmed in General Assembly resolution 60/251, paragraph 5: “Decides that the Council shall, inter alia: (g) Assume the role and responsibilities of the Commission on Human Rights relating to the work of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, as decided by the General Assembly in its resolution 48/141 of 20 December 1993.”

15. The Commission on Human Rights was invited at its 60th session (April 2004) to review the proposed strategic framework for 2006-2007 (without budget requirements) and submit its comments to the Secretary-General. The proposed strategic framework was submitted by the Secretary-General to the Committee for Programme and Coordination (CPC) for consideration and referral to the Third and the Fifth Committees of the General Assembly at its 59th session.⁴ However, the proposed strategic framework for the biennium 2008-2009, submitted to the General Assembly in 2006,⁵ was not reviewed by the Human Rights Council.

16. The approval of the OHCHR budget and its oversight remain within the exclusive authority of the General Assembly and its administrative, budgetary and financial mechanisms. These include the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) and the Fifth Committee, which approves the budget. The Council is not involved at any stage in the preparation of the proposed OHCHR programme budget. Therefore, the Council is neither made aware of the specific resources required for the projects and activities proposed by OHCHR, nor does the Council have an opportunity to review the adequacy of these resources.

17. In order to ensure transparent and strategic priority-setting and improve financial planning of human rights activities, the Inspectors believe that the Human Rights Council should be mandated to be involved in the review of the programme of work and the associated budget requirements for human rights activities at the draft stage, and to provide its advice and comments to the High Commissioner prior to the official submission to the CPC, ACABQ, and the Third and the Fifth Committees.

Recommendation 2

The General Assembly should instruct the High Commissioner to seek the advice and the views of the Human Rights Council in the preparation of the proposed strategic framework and the associated budget requirements for human rights activities, prior to the finalization of these documents.

C. Administration and management of trust funds

18. OHCHR has delegated authority for the management of the eight existing voluntary or trust funds. Project documents are produced for each project under the trust funds covering the biennium in the context of the OHCHR Strategic Management Plan. Annual cost plans are prepared under each project and submitted to the United Nations Office at Geneva (UNOG) by 1 November of the preceding year in conformity with ST/AI/284 and ST/SGB/188 covering the establishment and management of trust funds. OHCHR requests allotments from UNOG in accordance with the annual cost plans and relevant revisions, and upon receipt of sufficient cash as voluntary contributions under the project within the trust fund. Table 1 shows an overview of the total voluntary contributions made to the eight OHCHR voluntary or trust funds.

19. The Inspectors note with concern that there is neither intergovernmental involvement in the process of approval of the contributions made to the OHCHR voluntary or trust funds, nor in the review of the conditionalities (if any) attached to each contribution and the review of the activities to be carried out using these funds.

20. The majority of the OHCHR trust funds and voluntary funds have a Board of Trustees, which approves the cost plan covering projects financed from the fund in accordance with its internal guidelines. The Board Members of these trust funds are appointed by the Secretary-General (i.e. neither the Human Rights Council nor other organs representing Member States are involved in this process) and consist of international experts or eminent persons. The Secretary of the Board of Trustees, who is a staff member of OHCHR, reviews the recommendations of the Board and provides advice to the High Commissioner, who approves recommendations of the Board on behalf of the Organization. The Board of Auditors conducts audits of the OHCHR trust funds, but these audits are generally limited to observations with respect to the efficiency of the financial procedures, the accounting system, and the internal financial controls, and may not address any substantive issues.

21. The Trust Fund for the Support to the Activities of OHCHR has a different project proposal and approval process, compared to the other funds. This fund was established by the Secretary-General in 1993 to cover miscellaneous contributions intended to support the substantive work programme of OHCHR and to supplement existing regular budget resources. The resources of this fund include earmarked and unearmarked contributions approved by the United Nations Controller in accordance with the Financial Regulations and Rules of the United Nations. Within the context of the Strategic Management Plan, project documents are formulated by programme managers and reviewed and approved by the OHCHR Programme and Budget Review Board, which is an internal body consisting of senior managers and chaired by the Deputy High Commissioner. The total extrabudgetary income of this fund in 2006 was US$ 69.7 million, which represents 78 per cent of the total extrabudgetary resources received by OHCHR. While understanding that the activities financed from the fund are core activities that complement those financed from the programme budget approved by the General Assembly, the Inspectors regret that the Trust Fund for the Support to the Activities of OHCHR does not have an external Board or a Board of Trustees, to review and approve the projects and activities that are financed by the fund.

OHCHR should establish an appropriate Board of Trustees for the Trust Fund for the Support to the Activities of OHCHR, which would review and approve the specific projects and activities to be financed by the Fund.

III. RESOURCES

22. Although in 2005, the General Assembly reviewed a supplementary budget to support recommendations made in its resolution 60/1 on the 2005 World Summit Outcome and called for a doubling of OHCHR's regular budget resources over the next five years (with a view to progressively setting a balance between regular budget resources and voluntary contributions), OHCHR is still heavily dependent on voluntary contributions provided by some Member States. According to the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2008-2009,⁶ OHCHR's total resource requirements for 2006-2007 are estimated at US$ 265.3 million (revised appropriation). Of this sum, US$ 93.5 million, or 35.3 per cent, comes from the United Nations regular budget, while US$ 171.8 million, or 64.7 per cent, is projected to be funded from extrabudgetary resources.

A. Regular budget

23. Table 2 indicates that the regular budget resources for the biennium 2006-2007 for human rights related activities have increased by 48.8 per cent over the biennium 2004-2005. The proposed programme budget for the biennium 2008-2009 shows a further increase of 84.4 per cent over the biennium 2004-2005 and represents an increase of 23.9 per cent over the 2006-2007 appropriation.

24. However, concerns were expressed by OHCHR that the agreed target set by Member States in 2005 to double its regular budget resources over the next five years would not be reached. These concerns relate to how such a doubling of resources would to be handled and the decision on the precise baseline against which future increases of the regular budget would be measured.⁷ The ACABQ, in its report on the proposed programme budget for human rights for the biennium 2008-2009,⁸ recommends that the General Assembly consider adopting the revised appropriation for 2004-2005 as the baseline for the agreed doubling of the regular budget resources. Another concern of OHCHR is linked to the de facto zero real growth approach for the United Nations regular budget, which might prevent the agreed doubling of OHCHR regular budget resources. The Inspectors fully share these concerns and suggest that the General Assembly, through the Fifth Committee, should find ways to allow the growth of OHCHR regular budget resources, as per the agreed targets of the 2005 World Summit Outcome, which is essential to strengthening OHCHR to enable it to effectively carry out its mandate in order to respond to the broad range of human rights challenges facing the international community.

B. Extrabudgetary resources

25. In addition to regular budget funding, OHCHR also receives a large amount of funding through voluntary contributions from Governments, non-governmental organizations (NGOs), foundations, and private donors. The manner in which these contributions are provided has a great impact on OHCHR's ability to implement activities, particularly since it can only spend money that has already been deposited. Contributions made in a predictable, timely, and flexible manner help OHCHR to plan activities and to use its financial resources effectively and efficiently. Additionally, OHCHR is heavily dependant on the growing voluntary contributions to fund core and mandated activities that should remain within the regular budget. The regular budget covers only a third of total operating expenses, with the bulk of the resources being used to fund expenditure at headquarters and discharging the High Commissioner's mandated responsibilities towards the Human Rights Council, the treaty bodies and the special procedures. The field operations of OHCHR rely heavily on extrabudgetary funding and approximately 50 per cent of all extrabudgetary resources received in 2006 were spent in field offices, with the rest spread among the other areas of work, in most cases supplementing funds available under the regular budget.

26. Table 3 provides comparative figures for regular and extrabudgetary resources from 2002-2003 to 2008-2009. This table shows that the dependency on extrabudgetary resources has continued over recent years, representing almost 65 per cent of the OHCHR budget estimate for the 2006-2007 biennium. As a comparison, the percentage of extrabudgetary resources represented only 44 per cent for the 1996-1997 biennium.⁹

27. The Inspectors are concerned that such a crucial activity as human rights, which is one of the core mandates of the United Nations, is increasingly financed through voluntary contributions and subject to certain conditionalities (see paragraph 29 for more information). The percentage of estimated extrabudgetary resources (63 per cent) for the proposed budget for the biennium 2008-2009 has hardly decreased, compared to the previous biennium 2006-2007, and it is still subject to agreement by Member States to substantively increase the regular budget for that period.

Recommendation 4

The General Assembly should establish a reasonable balance between the regular budget of OHCHR and the voluntary contributions that could be accepted in support of human rights related activities.

Total resources for human rights activities (in US$)

28. The dependency on voluntary contributions is compounded by the reliance on a relatively small number of donors. In 2006, 97.6 per cent of pledged voluntary contributions came from 20 major donors and 80.8 per cent came from just ten countries.¹⁰ In 2006, OHCHR secured US$ 85.3 million in voluntary contributions, accounting for more than two-thirds of overall income – an increase of US$ 17 million (or nearly 25 per cent) on the previous year. The Inspectors are of the opinion that OHCHR should increase its efforts to broaden its donor base by including and encouraging non-traditional donor countries to make contributions.

Recommendation 5

In order to broaden the donor base, the High Commissioner for Human Rights should increase the dialogue with representatives from non-traditional donor countries, with a view to expanding their participation in financing human rights activities.

29. In 2006, 63 per cent of the funds from the top 20 donors were earmarked. However, the proportion of funding unearmarked by donors for specific purposes has risen steadily in recent years, from approximately 12 per cent in 2003 to 20 per cent in 2004, 25 per cent in 2005 and 37 per cent in 2006. Despite this recent positive trend, earmarked funding could limit OHCHR's capacity to ensure that funds are utilized in a sound and cost-effective manner. The Commission on Human Rights and its successor the Human Rights Council have called in several resolutions¹¹ upon donors to consider providing unearmarked contributions to the extent possible. The Inspectors regret that such a large percentage of the funding is still earmarked and believe that OHCHR should strengthen its efforts to convince donors to continue reducing earmarked funding and/or enhance the flexibility of funds, applying principles such as the Good Humanitarian Donorship principles.¹²

The General Assembly should instruct OHCHR to strengthen its efforts to convince donors to continue to reduce earmarked funding or enhance the flexibility of funds, applying principles such as the Good Humanitarian Donorship principles.

30. As stated before, there is no mechanism for Member States to review or approve individual voluntary contributions made to OHCHR, nor are they informed of the conditions proposed when individual contributions are being made. An estimate of the totality of the proposed use of voluntary contributions is presented for the information of Member States in the context of the Strategic Management Plan and in the OHCHR annual reports. Conditions imposed on proposed voluntary contributions are only reviewed for their financial suitability, in consultation with UNOG, which has sole delegated authority from the Controller of the

¹⁰ OHCHR Annual Report 2006.

¹¹ Commission on Human Rights resolutions 1999/54, 2000/1, 2002/2, 2004/2 and Human Rights Council resolution 4/6.

United Nations to accept voluntary contributions and approve contribution agreements on behalf of OHCHR. The Inspectors are of the view that voluntary contributions, as well as the conditionalities that may be attached to them, should be reviewed for acceptance by the Member States. This is also in compliance with the numerous resolutions of the Commission on Human Rights and the Human Rights Council¹³ in which they request the High Commissioner to provide all States with information on voluntary contributions, including their share in the overall budget of the human rights programme, and their allocation.

Recommendation 7

The High Commissioner for Human Rights should inform the Human Rights Council of the voluntary contributions, which are received by OHCHR, their allocation, as well as the conditionalities that may be attached to them.

IV. HUMAN RESOURCES MANAGEMENT

A. Background

31. The issue of the imbalance in the geographical distribution of professional and higher staff was repeatedly raised by the Commission on Human Rights as a matter of serious concern. Requests to correct this imbalance were conveyed by the Commission through several resolutions adopted after 1997, when the current arrangements for OHCHR were introduced.

32. The Commission on Human Rights, in its resolution 2002/80, requested JIU to undertake a comprehensive review of the management and administration of OHCHR, in particular with regard to its impact on recruitment policies and the composition of the staff. The JIU report¹⁴ highlighted several areas requiring improvement and presented proposals aimed at addressing the situation. In his comments,¹⁵ the Secretary-General noted that the best course of action to implement the recommendations would be determined in consultation with the Office of Human Resources Management. The General Assembly, in its resolution 59/266, noted that JIU would submit a follow-up report.

33. The JIU report on follow-up to the management review of OHCHR was transmitted to the General Assembly in a note by the Secretary-General.¹⁶ It recommended that the Secretariat should take measures to consider the specific situation of unrepresentation and underrepresentation in OHCHR when organizing specialized competitive human rights examinations and to prepare an action plan aimed at reducing the current imbalance in OHCHR's geographical distribution. JIU recognized that real change would take place over time, but called on OHCHR to reverse the current trend of increasing recruitment from overrepresented regions. The Secretary-General in his comments¹⁷ agreed that further efforts are needed to address the issue of geographical distribution, and noted that steps are being undertaken to improve the situation in OHCHR but that their impact would be tangible only in the medium term.

34. In its resolution 61/159, the General Assembly regretted that efforts to address the imbalance regarding the regional geographical diversity of the staff of OHCHR had not resulted in a significant improvement. It noted the low representation from the regional groups of African, Asian, Eastern European, and Latin American and Caribbean States in the professional and higher staff of OHCHR. The Assembly decided, inter alia, to allow, in the effort to redress the specific geographical imbalance of OHCHR, the establishment of a temporary mechanism whereby recruitment of staff at the P-2 level would not be restricted to successful candidates from national competitive examinations (NCEs).

B. Measures to address the imbalance in the geographical distribution of the staff

35. To address the imbalance in the geographical distribution of the staff of OHCHR, a report¹⁸ with proposed measures was presented by the Secretary-General, as requested by the General Assembly in resolution 61/244.

¹⁴ A/59/65-E/2004/48.

¹⁶ A/61/115.

¹⁷ A/61/115/Add.1.

¹⁸ A/61/823.

36. Measures which are reported to be implemented by OHCHR include among others: offering NCEs to nationals of unrepresented and underrepresented Member States; facilitating the timely marking of the 2008 human rights NCE; widening the pool of qualified candidates; advertising posts on the United Nations Secretariat Galaxy e-staffing system, in international periodicals, and through mailing lists, etc. OHCHR has also introduced an internal strategy aimed at improving geographical diversity.

37. An additional measure includes, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 61/159, the establishment of a temporary mechanism that would allow OHCHR to recruit candidates at the P-2 level from sources other than the NCE roster. However, the Inspectors would like to stress (as they already did in JIU report JIU/REP/2006/3) that while in the long run the NCE may help to gradually improve the geographical distribution of staff at the entry level, on its own the NCE is not sufficient to significantly improve the overall situation.

38. Additionally, the internal action plan and strategy that addresses the issue of geographical distribution, has shown few results so far. The report of the High Commissioner on the composition of the staff of OHCHR, submitted to the Council in February 2006,¹⁹ outlines the Commissioner's recruitment strategy. The reports states that recruitment at the P-3 to D-1 level is somehow limited by the United Nations Secretariat staff selection system. Posts at the P-3 level are normally reserved for internal candidates, which complicates external recruitment, and for posts at the P-4 to D-1 levels, a balance needs to be found between external recruitment and internal promotion. The report also explains that between June 2005 and February 2006, a total of 120 short-term posts were regularized, ending the practice of employing long-serving staff on short-term contracts (120 vacancy announcements were created and processed). Evidently, through this practice, the imbalance in the geographical distribution of staff has continued, as most of these temporary posts were occupied by nationals from overrepresented countries (see table 4). Therefore, the Inspectors believe that more can be done to identify and recruit candidates from underrepresented countries, using all possible means such as the network of United Nations information centres (UNICs) and United Nations resident coordinators and their knowledge of local NGOs and media.

39. As part of the programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007, the General Assembly has authorized 80 new (regular) posts at professional and higher level for OHCHR. It also anticipated that a significant number of new extrabudgetary posts would be created during the biennium 2006-2007. The programme budget for the biennium 2008-2009²⁰ proposes another increase in posts, a total of 36 new (regular) posts of which 26 would be professional posts.

²⁰ A/62/6 (Sect. 23).

The increase in posts in the current and next biennium should be seen as an opportunity to balance the geographical distribution of staff.

C. Composition of the staff

40. While welcoming the various measures proposed and already undertaken to address the imbalance in the geographical distribution of the staff, the Inspectors wish to stress that the imbalance in geographical distribution is still prominent, as shown in the following paragraphs and tables.

41. Despite the two previous JIU reports containing specific recommendations and the fact that the Office of Human Resources Management has recently made specific proposals with regard to a temporary mechanism for recruitment of staff at the P-2 and P-3 levels,²¹ the situation has not significantly improved (see tables 5, 6 and 7).

42. The tables below show the numbers of OHCHR professional staff from 2005 to 30 June 2007, according to the five groups established by the General Assembly (African States, Asian States, Latin American and Caribbean States, Eastern European States and Western European and other States). Table 5 includes data on regular staff in the professional and higher categories²² and table 6 includes data on non-regular staff in the professional and higher categories (i.e. staff holding appointments of less than one year; staff charged to general temporary assistance funds; staff employed in OHCHR field offices; and staff employed as project personnel). Table 7 shows combined figures for geographical distribution taking into consideration the total number of professional staff.²³

43. Comparison of the figures from 2005 with June 2007 shows that the number of professional regular staff (see table 5) has increased by 174 per cent (from 106 to 290 persons), while the number of professional non-regular staff has decreased by 52 per cent (from 257 to 123 persons) (see table 6). This increase in regular staff is a result of an increase in the General Assembly's 2006-2007 budget cycle for OHCHR, which provided for 93 new regular budget posts, as well as the regularization of 120 short-term posts. Despite this increase in new regular posts, the professional staff is still unevenly distributed and the opportunity to fill these new posts to solve the geographical imbalance seems to have been forsaken. The most recent figures for regular staff, covering the period between 2006 and 30 June 2007, show a slight improvement with a drop of 5 per cent in number of staff from the Group of Western Europe and other States. However, this Group remains the Group with the highest representation for many years and represents 61.7 per cent of the total professional regular staff as of 30 June 2007.

44. The Inspectors also noted that the non-regular professional staff from the Group of Western European and other States showed an increase of 8 per cent in 2006 over 2005 (see table 6). Additionally, the percentage of professional staff from the African region actually decreased from 16 per cent in 2005 to 12.7 per cent in 2006. The most recent figures for June

²¹ Memorandum from the Assistant Secretary-General for Human Resources Management, 3 August 2007.

²³ Figures taken from the reports of the High Commissioner on the composition of the staff of OHCHR, E/CN.4/2006/103 and A/HRC/4/93 and from OHCHR's official responses to JIU requests for data, on 15 March 2007 and 31 August 2007.

2007 indicate a modest decline in the percentage of staff from the Group of Western Europe and other States.

45. When looking at the most recent figures, as of 30 June 2007, for the total number of professional staff, those from the Western European and other States account for 60.1 per cent, while the African States represent only 12.4 per cent, the Asian States 12.6 per cent, Latin American and Caribbean States 10.9 per cent and the Eastern European States 4.1 per cent. The Inspectors would like to reiterate once again the view that this serious and continuing imbalance in the geographical distribution of staff could result in diminishing the effectiveness and credibility of the work of OHCHR if it is perceived to be culturally biased and unrepresentative of the United Nations as a whole.

46. While the Inspectors have taken note of the High Commissioner's report and the measures described in the previous section in a positive manner, they regret that the overall situation has not yet improved, as reflected in tables 5, 6 and 7 above and as confirmed by the geographical distribution of new recruitments between 2006 and 30 June 2007. Although the Inspectors recognize that real change would take place over time, they call upon the General Assembly to give clear instructions to the High Commissioner on the next steps to be taken to promptly and effectively address the ongoing imbalance in the geographical distribution of the professional staff of OHCHR. Additionally, JIU will continue to review and monitor systematically the geographical distribution of staff of OHCHR, as mandated by the Commission on Human Rights and the General Assembly.

Recommendation 8

The General Assembly should introduce a temporary maximum level on the recruitment of new professional staff (between the P-1 and P-5 levels) to OHCHR from overrepresented regions, until such time as a geographical balance has been reached.
